

Hi-Fi Metadata

TailwindCSS was used to create and style this site. In the annotations below, you will find Tailwind-specific keywords describing the styling, instead of raw CSS. Tailwind also benefits from being shorter (and perhaps more intuitive) to write and understand.

The TailwindCSS Documentation can be found here
(<https://tailwindcss.com/>)

in case you would rather re-create the prototype using raw CSS

The device prototypes roughly correspond to the `sm,md,lg/xl` media query breakpoints

Unless otherwise specified, the CSS from the larger device also applies to the smaller device!

See the style guide for the specific color palette identifiers for each of the major sections/elements

"Took my Open Water class here. They were great the whole way though. Great customer service. Swapped out stuff when it misfit during use for my classmate. Made a guy from a landlocked state feel right at home on the boat and 30 ft under water. Look forward to doing more dives with this center!"
